Task List

1. To create my website, I am going to first sketch out wireframes for the layouts in my notebook.
2. My design comp will also be sketched, using the wireframes from before to determine the layout, as well as knowing where to place my images, banners, and icons.
3. For the timeline, I want to spend a day at most on designs after I finish with planning (which is the current process). I will also spend a day or two for assembling the website and styling it. The process will end with publishing the website.
4. The target audience are people on their computers, in a quiet, comfortable space that want to enhance their comfortable experience by browsing through this website for friendly, comforting images to look at and possibly buy.
5. Afterwards, I will scale/measure my images so that they fill their appropriate spaces. Finally, I will do the coding for html's and the style sheet.
